Dear Judge Cedarbaum,

I am Manuel Tovar Gaytan and I have worked for Paul Greenwood at Old Salem Farm and Robin Greenwood at Grand Central since 1995. Paul is somebody who has helped me a lot in getting a work visa, and then a green card in the end of the 90s when I worked at Old Salem Farm.Paul sponsored me and paid the fees for me to get a temporary work visa for 3 or 4 seasons until I was eligible to apply for a green card. When I applied for a green card he helped me with the costs of the application and the lawyer and guaranteed me a job which is a very important part of being approved for a green card. When they buy the farm Grand Central in Brewster I was the first person to come and work there for them in 2002. Paul and also Robin gave me chance to become a citizen of USA and have a good job where I can have my wife here and make a better life. I had some hard times waiting for my wife to get a visa when she was in Mexico and I was here, but Paul always gave me chance to go to Mexico and see her and when she finally came here with her green card in 2010 he make us very welcome even though things were very difficult on the farm at that time.

I know he has problems with his business and at that time when we had no help on the farm he came and did mowing and other things to help us. He is always very easy to talk to and he has helped me with many things like signing up me and my family for health insurance, and he helped me many times with things on my computer that didn't work. He spent a lot of time at my house looking on my computer to fix things that were not working. I still work for them, I take care of the house and property on Wheeler Road. Another thing is that when the farm at Grand Central was sold, Paul and Robin talked to the receiver about having me take over the care of the Wheeler Road house and land, so I still have a job and a place to live with my wife and daughter. I know he still has problems and has a guilty plea, but he is a good man and I think he wants to help everybody. All of the people who work with me in all this time will say the same thing about Paul. We call him Pablo for honorary Mexican.

Yours truly,

Jose M. Tovar Gaytan

Manuel Tovar Gaytan.

Dear Judge Cedarbaum,

I, Maria Mondragon, has had the pleasure knowing Mr. Paul Greenwood for an estimate of four years since 2010. I have worked for his wife ever since we've met. He has done a lot for me and had helped me very much. When the passport people wanted proof that I was born in Texas, Mr. Greenwood found the mid-wife who helped my mother even though that happened over 30 years ago and she now lived in Minnesota. Mr. Greenwood had helped me with finding a suitable lawyer that dealt with immigration who helped me obtaining my passport when I was having problems. Mr. Greenwood went to every appointment I had from the lawyers sometimes 90 miles away since my husband was out of the state. When my husband was out of the state, Mr. Greenwood was always there for my family and I, since I was doing bad because of my husbands absence. Paul Greenwood has a very big heart, he is an excellent person and I am very grateful for all of his help.

Very Truly Yours

Dear Judge Cedarbaum,

I Everardo Mondragon, make note that I've known Mr. Paul Greenwood since 2010 when I began to work for his wife, Mrs. Robin Greenwood. Ever since then I have had the pleasure to find out just how great of a person he is, and an excellent friend. Mr. Greenwood was always watching over my legal status, helping me find lawyers, and explaining my situation. He always emotionally supported my wife and family since I was out of the U.S. trying to regain my legal status. Mr. Greenwood took my wife to the appointments since she has difficulties with transportation [redacted]. Thanks to his support and help I have my residence and back with my family. I don't find words to thank Mr. Greenwood for all that he has done for me and my family. He is a person whom you can always count on. During the time that I have known Mr. Greenwood, I have come to know that he is an excellent father, husband and a great human being. I must say that he is a role model to me.

Very Truly Yours

Dear Judge Cedarbaum:

I am writing to you on behalf of Mr. Paul Greenwood, a dear friend of mine for almost 20 years. I am recently retired from the Contract Furniture Industry in New York City after 38 years. My wife and I have lived in the North Salem, New York area for the past 30 years. My wife and I have 3 grown children and attended the same Church as Paul and his family.

I first met Paul in 1994 at St. James Episcopal Church in North Salem, New York shortly after we had joined the parish. Paul was well known in town and in the parish as a "down to earth" guy and I could see why as soon as we met. Paul, though known to be wealthy was outgoing and friendly to all he met without regard to social strata.

We were of course we were as shocked as anyone when we found out about Paul's legal issues, finding it hard to believe that the Paul we knew could even be involved.

My experience with Paul was centered, around activities with our church, its management and its outreach activities, with both Paul and myself having served terms as Wardens of the St. James Vestry.

In 1995 we started a Bible Study for men of the parish with the encouragement of, our parish priest at that time, Susie Post. We met together with 8-10 other men in the parish on a weekly basis from its inception until 2012. Over the years I got to know Paul on a spiritual level, through the weekly conversations about scripture and its meaning in our lives. As is common with Bible Study groups you will attract the "walking wounded" and much was the case with our group. Over the years many of us struggled with marital issues and family matters and found solace in scripture. Paul's willingness to open his home for our meetings, his counsel and his commitment was instrumental in the success of this group.

My first hand experience has to do with my own breakup in 1995, divorce, reconciliation and remarriage of my wife and myself in 2001. During that time Paul was a true and dear friend to both my wife and to me. The breakup and subsequent divorce was devastating to me personally as I did not initiate it and was caught off guards. Paul during those years proved to be a true friend and was always there to provide support and helped me to confront my own issues; and through his efforts showed me there was a path back to the woman I loved. His generosity of spirit and his selfless desire to see us reunited helped me to change the trajectory of my life and find my way back to my wife.

As an offshoot of our involvement with St. James, Paul and I became involved with the Episcopal Cursillo movement in the diocese of New York. The Cursillo movement is centered, around the Cursillo week-end, where for three days you are immersed in spiritual experience with others throughout the diocese of New York. The very nature of Cursillo is inclusionary and though attending a weekend as a canditate is only done once there is opportunity to serve on the team that brings other candidates through the program. As active members Paul and I were called to serve together on a number of week-ends over the years. The time and effort to serve is time consuming as there are a number of days that the team members spend in training and team building as well as four days for the actual week-end. Sacrificing that amount of time is a labor of love not only to the candidates but to the faith we serve. In addition I served with Paul on the governing body for the Cursillo movement in New York.

Paul recognized early on that the one issue that had to be resolved was financial. Since the program had to be paid for by those attending as candidates and team members there could be exclusion, of those who could not afford the fees associated with the program. To deal with this program Paul initiated and through a generous donation established a fund that would insure that anyone who wanted to attend, either as a candidate or as a team member.

In closing let me say that the Paul Greenwood I have known for the past 20 years in all my dealings and interactions is a good, kind and generous man. I would ask you to consider leniency in this case, not to forgive what he has done but to treat it as a terrible mistake. That the depth of love that lives in him not simply be put away but rather be put to service to others in some way. For I truly believe that Paul will not fail in any chance given to him.

Respectfully,

Richard J. Hammer

Dear Judge Cedarbaum:

I am writing for myself and my husband, Wayne LaFranco, on behalf of our friend, Paul Greenwood. We have lived in the Town of North Salem for twenty-three years and met Paul through our church approximately twenty years ago. We have always considered him a good friend and there are numerous examples of how he has been there for us over the years.

[redacted]

Another example of Paul's caring and thoughtfulness as a friend was during a period of time when my son was undecided about what to study in college, and what career path would be the best for him. Paul spent time with my son, offering him sound advice and guidance. My son wound up choosing a different career path at that time, but at a later date, he took Paul's advice and ultimately graduated in a course of post-college study in the field Paul had discussed with him years earlier. My son has since pursued a career in that field.

My husband, Wayne, also views Paul as a loyal friend who was very involved in the church our families both attended. Paul participated in numerous church activities, and often served in a lay capacity on the altar with the priest at church services. He also volunteered his time and services to the church in many other church events.

In conclusion, my husband and I feel that Paul has always been a devoted and loving husband to his wife, Robin, and father to his daughters [redacted] and a good friend to us. He has helped many people in the community and never failed to seek out opportunities to help others.

Respectfully,

Dear Judge Cedarbaum:

I am writing on behalf of Mr. Paul Greenwood at the behest of his attorney, Mr. Tom Thornhill. I have known Mrs. Greenwood for almost 40 years. I have known Paul for almost 25 years, since he became active in the sport horse world here in Westchester County New York.

In my capacity as a practicing veterinarian I or other members of my practice worked for Mr. and Mrs. Greenwood for many years. I knew them to be fine people who were very involved in their community, their sport, and local charities. They sent a horse to the South Korean Olympics to compete and represent this country. They funded a childrens' charity called Friends of Karen for many years. Paul was the mayor of North Salem. He was a busy man, but he was available to his friends and to his constituents and he worked hard for his community.

I believe that you can tell a lot about people by how they take care of their employees and their animals. They treated the people who worked for them in many cases, like family members. They treated their animals impeccably. They were kind and gracious to the people with whom they came in contact regardless of their social status. If they hosted a party, there would be grooms, tradesmen, local horsemen and businessmen as well as the wealthy and influential in attendance. Paul came from more humble origins and I believe that he never forgot that.

On a more personal level, at one time as my practice grew, I found that I needed funding for a relatively expensive piece of diagnostic equipment which had not really been proven in the equine industry. In the early nineties we were among the first veterinarians in the United States to utilize nuclear scintigraphy for lameness diagnosis in competitive horses. Paul didn't ask for any more than a handshake for collateral and helped fund that project back when I doubt that I could have gotten it off the ground without that help. I paid him back pretty much as I got around to it without ever having him mention it.

Having said all of that, we all know that he made mistakes and did things that he wishes he could redo. All of us are in that boat.

I hope that you see it in your heart to be as lenient as possible when sentencing Paul. I sincerely believe he is repentant, and I believe he has a great deal more to offer society if given the opportunity. He is my friend and I would like to see him get another chance.

Sincerely,

Wm M Bradley

Dear Judge Cedarbaum.

I am aware that Paul Greenwood has pleaded guilty to a crime and I would like to offer my intense vote of confidence, resulting from my many year relationship with him, vouching for his very high level of integrity, responsibility, wisdom, character and willingness to help.

As an introduction, I have been a practicing veterinarian for 40 years. However, I have been anything but regular in my practices. Through problems with my own health just coming out of Cornell University in the early 1970s, I started to embrace modalities alternative to standard, conventional medical therapy and shortly became certified in acupuncture. This then led me to using nutritional supplementation, herbal and other natural, biological medicines and despite seeing and documenting very noteworthy responses and successes, I was confronted with decades of ridicule and condemnation from my peers along with fears and financial hardship. Now, decades later, my work has finally gained acceptance. Besides regularly attracting clients from all over the United States and Canada and quite a few A-list celebrities and authoring a book, The Nature of Animal Healing, which has been consistently selling for over 15 years, I had a national satellite radio show for 6 years and became Oprah's veterinarian, who then invited me onto her show. The reason I say all of this is that Paul Greenwood became and has been one of the key figures in my life that helped me through all of the adversity I encountered. Besides being one of my leading clients spanning almost 30 years, entrusting me to care for his very many pets, including pet pigs and his horses, using my non-conventional approaches, we became the closest of friends. Paul and his dear wife Robin actually chose me to play guitar and sing at their wedding ceremony back in June of 1991.

Over the years of our friendship, when I needed advice, either with life situations or especial with business issues or technical ones such as computer problems, it would be Paul I would call to help me through. This occurred on a fairly regular basis and also when he was in my clinic with his pets or when we were together socially over dinner. In July of 2003, when a company I founded with my brother; one that developed a one of a kind computerized nutritional analysis program for pets, met with financial disaster, it was Paul who came forward to pledge a large sum of money to help bridge us until we got a new investor to take over. In the year 2000, my family moved to the town of North Salem, NY where Paul already resided. He ran for town supervisor and won by landslide and the word around town during his years of tenure was how incredible he was in making positive changes while, from what I understood, taking little or no salary in exchange.

When I think about Paul, there's one word that always comes to mind>>Responsibility. I could ALWAYS count on Paul to be there; to keep his word, to answer a call, to be on time, to deliver or answer to any agreement made, and always with such a high degree of knowledge, intelligence and wherewithal. I have always considered him "a genius".

But of all these positive attributes, I would consider the one that stands above all others to be his love, dedication and care for all his companion animals, regardless of species. And by this, I mean hands-on care regardless of how busy I know he had become at many times. To quote Abraham Lincoln,

"I am in favor of animal rights as well as human rights. That is the way of a whole human being."

and

"I care not for a man's religion whose dog and cat are not the better for it."

I am certain that it's not just me that has this experience of Paul Greenwood. I was part of his 50 year birthday celebration event. There were friends and relatives from literally all over the country in attendance and throughout the event, many people, one by one, stood up to share their experiences of how Paul positively impacted their lives in so many ways.

All in all, to say that Paul Greenwood is a dear friend, a major supporter, an inspiration and a role model would be putting it mildly!

Dear Judge Cedarbaum:

I first met Paul Greenwood in 1979, when he purchased Old Salem Farm in Brewster, N.Y. I was either employed by him or in contact with him at least five days a week until 1990-91. He was a very fair, kind and generous employer.

I remember when Paul first purchased the farm. Rather than bringing in all new employees, he created new positions for all of us who wanted to stay on. Specifically, he trained two women, Sunny Cross and Joan Brierly in office and management so that they could remain at Old Salem since the programs they had been involved in were discontinued.

Paul always took great interest in the young employees and encouraged them to get a college education. I know that he helped finance (or totally financed) the education of two young people, Alice Debany and Scott Hofstetter while I worked for him.

Charlie Weaver, one of the country's top professional riders came to work for Paul in 1986. Within the first year Charlie suffered a disastrous fall at a New Jersey horse show that left him paralyzed, and it was questionable whether he would ever walk again. Paul not only traveled regularly to New Jersey to visit Charlie, but arranged and paid for his treatment at Burke Rehabilitation in White Plains, New York as soon as Charlie was able to be transferred. After many months of rehabilitation, Charlie was able to walk and his job was waiting for him.

While working at Old Salem Farm, I become involved in a heartbreaking relationship and began drinking heavily. Paul took me aside and strongly encouraged me to get help, which I did and am forever grateful to him for that guidance.

I lost touch with Paul until he moved to North Carolina, where I am now living, but had heard of his situation and that he had pleaded guilty to the charges against him. When I finally saw him, he was very forthright about his mistake, and I am happy to be able to share some of the good memories I have of Paul.

Very Truly Yours,

Honorable Miriam Goldman Cedarbaum

United States District Court

Dear Judge Cedarbaum

It was my privilege to meet and work with Paul Greenwood. I am aware that he has plead guilty to a number of counts regarding his business firm.

I met Paul in 1995 when he asked me to modify the low ceiling in his new home to accommodate an antique grandfather clock. We constructed a five sided box into the attic and finished the interior to match the room and set the clock to running. It went on from there and we built many things for him over the years. He was very demanding in the quality of the work that we provided and expected fair treatment of all the various personnel that we directed throughout construction of his main house, guest house and Grand Central Farm. We had one incident of raised voices and talked it out agreeing to disagree with explanation of our reasons and we never had cause to raise voices again.

Paul was generous to the construction staff, buying pizza for anyone on site at Friday lunch for years at a time. He would often show up, have a slice and have conversation with all from the mason laborers to the visiting architects, etc. He insisted upon being called Paul not Mr. Greenwood and often inquired of the status of sick family members, minor injuries, general health and took great interest in the many minor details of construction as well as the overall. He gave annual bonuses to the primary construction staff and subcontractors and had an annual Christmas party, usually at the worksite but on occasion at a restaurant. He was eloquent in his thanks to the services provided.

Another supplier to the job and Paul's fuel oil provider asked if we could find a position for his son who "was not going to college". Paul worked it out with me to employ the young man who really got his feet under himself doing hard work and going home with a feeling of accomplishment. Paul kept track and spoke with Rob regularly and gave him much encouragement.

I was sent once to a home to inspect to decide upon extent of repair required to make reasonably habitable. The divorced woman who lived there with two children had been abandoned by her husband. She attended St. James church as did the Greenwood family and he had learned of her misfortune. She expressed a desire to remain in town so that her children could complete their high school education in North Salem. After Paul read my report of the work required to make her house reasonably comfortable, he decided to buy a different house and to allow her to stay there while her children finished their years at the high school. We did some repairs and improvements to help her live more comfortably in that house.

During the years that I contracted for the Greenwoods, I met many of their immediate family and became familiar with some. They were a close family and Paul was beloved by all and he always told me of how they were progressing in life to keep me updated beyond my contact with them. It was an honor and pleasure to become a part of that extended family.

I hope that this in some small way conveys my respect for Paul Greenwood. I consider him an outstanding member of the community where he had many friends and served his church and later the town as Supervisor. He was always fair and open in his dealings with the contract work that we did together. Our friendship extended to dining together with no talk of construction, just conversing on the ways of life and other points of interest. We maintain a ragged correspondence and get together whenever he comes to North Salem. Thank you for this opportunity to express my opinion,

Sincerely,

Dear Judge Cedarbaum,

I am aware Paul Greenwood has pleaded guilty in his case but would like to express what a positive impact Mr. Greenwood has made on my family and myself. I paint for a living with my own business my uncle and I started. During these beginning stages, I started working for Paul Greenwood in 1995 by painting his house. Mr. Greenwood has been nothing but friendly, loyal, inviting, personable, and selfless. Most of the people I work for wouldn't care about my personal life, my well being, or my happiness but there has never been a time Mr. Greenwood has not stopped by without saying hello, asking me how I'm doing, and asking me about my family. During lunch breaks, he would sometimes bring my coworkers and me pizza or offer us something to drink.

In 2006, I was going on a trip to Senegal with my 13 year old daughter as part of the Senegal-America project through her middle school. This project was specifically focused on helping a sister school repaint, rebuild, redecorate, resupply, and refurnish this school in Africa. We were raising money to help buy school supplies, mosquito nets, and other necessities they needed over there and since this was the first year the project started, we had little plans or finances to work off of. When I told him about this trip, he gave us a check for $2,500 without being asked. I never tried to solicit a donation of any sort but he gave us the money to help a school in a third world country and it was the largest donation anyone on the trip had collected. It really help this project grow and to this day the Senegal America project continues and students from the middle school go every year to that school to help them out.

Sincerely,
Hayleng Tea

Dear Judge Cedarbaum;

My name is Sorcha Hallinan. I live in Waterbury, CT and currently work for Cheshire Tool Co in the accounting department for the last 4 years. I have known Paul for about 20 years, through his wife Robin and also working on his farm, Grand Central, as Bookkeeper.

Over the years I witnessed Paul support and sponsor kids that showed great promise in the equestrian world. They wanted to compete in events at a national and international level but were only able to do this without his financial generosity. He provided them the use of his horses including the full care and transportation. During September – November of 1988, while working for Ann Fisher of Tashua Farm, her daughter, Suzanne, had completed the Medal/Maclay division that qualified her to compete in the the Championship event. Suzanne would not have done so without the use of Paul's horse, Keep the Change. He was an integral part of these young kid's lives, he made a difference by allowing them to reach their full potential.

On a personal note, during my many years working for the Downtown Cabaret Theatre, a non profit theatre in Bridgeport, CT, fundraising was part of my duties there. I called Paul to ask, even though this is not his community, if he would like to sponsor one of the children's shows during the 2001-2002 Season for $5,000. Without hesitation he said "yes". This sponsorship helped subsidize approximately 2,000 inner city kids from the Bridgeport community to see live theatre, not otherwise available to them. I cannot tell you what this meant to these children, it was so well received and appreciated. This is just who Paul is, a great father, husband and neighbor, even if they're not right next door, he extended his support!

I know Paul has made a mistake and he's plead guilty but part of life is making mistakes. I'm sure he has and will continue repairing, correcting and rebuilding for the rest of his life. He is simply a good man that made a bad decision.

Thank you for your time and consideration,

Respectfully,

Sorcha Hallinan

Dear Judge Cedarbaum,

Twenty two years ago Paul Greenwood did me an enormous favor that affected my whole career. I don't think that I ever thanked him sufficiently, so I am happy to have a chance to write this letter.

I was a young professional aspiring to be an international rider. My clients stabled horses at Paul's "Old Salem Farm" in North Salem, New York. The owner of the best horse (a horse with potential for the 1992 Olympics) went bankrupt and his horses were sold at auction at the stable. Paul, recognizing that my future was falling out from under me, bought the horse, allowing me time to repay him shortly afterward. Then, knowing that I would be overwhelmed with the expense of campaigning the horse internationally, he offered to sponsor me with the horse and did so for the next few years.

I was eventually an alternate for the 1992 Olympics, but two years later won a bronze medal with that horse at the 1994 World Championships in The Hague, Netherlands. It was the highlight of my career, but also gave me credentials to become a leader in the sport of dressage and an international judge. Years later, I judged the Olympic Games in 2008 and 2012.

I was not in contact with Paul for a few years. When he told me recently that he had pled guilty to a crime, I found it difficult to believe. For all of the years that I knew him, he was so involved with other people's ambitions, goals and futures! I feel that if he made a mistake, it was during a very isolated time period, and is outweighed by his many years of generosity and respect for young people that were struggling.

I hope that as you determine his future, you will accept opinions from people that have known another Paul, over a much longer time than you. In the horse sport, we have many competitive, ambitious people who are very self-serving. Paul is one of the few that I have known whose efforts resulted in success for others while he remained in the background. For the help that he gave me, he asked for NO acknowledgement, no credit, and no "thank you". I hope that you can give him this credit and leniency as you sentence him.

Sincerely,

Dear Judge Cedarbaum,

I am writing to you on behalf of Paul Greenwood in order to help provide more shape to your understanding of who he is and how he has positively affected others around him throughout his life. To first tell you something about myself, I am currently a psychiatrist working at Silver Hill Hospital in New Canaan, CT, and live nearby in Darien, CT. I am married and have two young sons, and love spending time with my family.

I know Paul through the 'horse world' if you will, first meeting him during my time riding horses at Old Salem Farm, as a young 10 year old girl. I first met him in 1990, and continued to see him regularly until 1997, when I went to college. In 1990, I was initially taking lessons with Robin Greenwood (at that time they were yet married), and trying to ride as many horses as I could. My mother is a professional horseback rider/instructor, so I was eager to follow in her footsteps. I initially only knew Paul in passing, would say hello, but I was too shy to say anything else. As the years passed I would find myself riding my horse at the same time as Paul was, and we struck up a friendship as we would both be finished with our respective lessons at the same time. We would have conversations about life events, and I would keep him up to date with the happenings in the life of a teenager. He would find ways to give advice in a non-paternalistic way, in the ways that would allow a teenager to be able to absorb it without even realizing it. As time continued and I was in High school, I continued to ride horses with Paul, and also knew him away from the stable as well, as he and Robin were friends with my mother and my step-father. Paul was an avid member of his congregation and was actively involved in helping support their local activities, and I know that my (now deceased) step-father always respected him a great deal.

If I had to describe Paul I would describe him as generous, genuine and kind. He was always straightforward and looking to do good for the most number of people. He invited all of the kids riding at the stable to his wedding, which I still hold as a fantastic memory. I would come to him when I was doing fundraising for my various school projects, and he was always by far the most generous donor. I became the second highest individual fundraiser during one of these events to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association, due to his generosity. The biggest way that Paul impacted me was with the horses. I love riding, and as I mentioned, I would ride whatever I could. Old Salem Farm was full of amazing spectacular jumpers, and he made it possible for me to not only ride many of these horses, but to show them as well. His generosity was what allowed me to compete to the level that I did, as I did not have to pay to ride his horses and he would help pay for the showing as well. I would not have been able to have this opportunity if it was not for Paul. I spent a great deal of time riding one of his horses, Semper Fi, who to this day remains my favorite horse of all time. Paul helped to sponsor me competing with him, and allowed me to ride him almost daily. The experience he allowed me to have with competing horses, and throughout my riding career, has left a permanent impression on me. Why is this important? It is important because everything from the conversations we would have on horseback to his generosity, support and advice helped to shape me into someone who would persevere, make the best out of a situation and helped me all the way through medical school. He was and remains someone I would go to for advice or guidance.

I appreciate your consideration in this matter.

Respectfully,

Dear Judge Cedarbaum:

I respectfully submit to you my experiences with Mr. Paul Greenwood in the community, which date back to the mid 1980's. His equally positive and supportive deeds since that time period, have allowed me to develop from a teenager that rode horses into becoming a respected, professional horse trainer.

Being a fourth generation equestrian who was training at Paul Greenwoods facility in North Salem, NY at the age of 15 in 1985, I had a devoted yet single divorced mother. She was a middle class person who struggled to make ends meet. Paul recognized my desire to pursue my goals of training and riding in national competitions. In 1987, I was afforded an incredible opportunity by him to show and train upon one of his horses. The particular horse won a National ASPCA Maclay Finals, held at Madison Square Garden, NY, NY the year prior with a rider from Florida. My mother at the time, could not afford to have me show the particular horse with the commanded annual lease fee. The annual lease fee was $25,000.00 (twenty-five thousand dollars) of which I later learned from my mother prior to her passing, that Paul waived that fee, so that I could pursue my dream. So during that year of 1987, I continued to train at his Old Salem Farm in North Salem, NY and won many accolades throughout the North East region (Florida to Connecticut). This rewarding and uplifting stage of my life set me up to become a professional at the age of 18. I subsequently went on to help my mother with her showing of horses and training of clients at her farm in Connecticut. My mother and I had a beautiful partnership with the horses for 14 (fourteen) years until her passing in 2002. Just prior to the loss of my mother, I learned from her how giving and unselfish Paul was by waiving that fee back in 1987. His generosity truly allotted me to enter the horse show world professionally and confidently. He never made my mother feel guilty for waiving that lease fee nor did he ever approach me upon this matter.

In addition to my training experiences stated above, Paul's temperament while at the farm and at his charity horse shows (of which I experienced during my years working alongside my mother) was always a professional yet light hearted one, which would uplift anyone who came in contact with him. Paul would greet you daily with a smile and enable you to feel genuinely positive about your day ahead. He cared for the horse's welfare as well, by inquiring often as to each horse that was ridden and as to their developments. His farm was very well organized, immaculate and had an exceedingly pleasant atmosphere. The people that trained and worked there were proud to be part of Old Salem Farm. Equines were happy there as well; as grass fields and many improvements were conducted for drainage, paddocks, plantings, even including trails connecting to the surrounding community for all to enjoy.

Today, I am 44 year old mom of a seven year old daughter and I am happily married. I am aware that Mr. Paul Greenwood has pleaded guilty. It is my hope that I have shown in the above paragraphs, how Paul has shaped my life and how he has most certainly touched so many other lives, including my mother's along the way. I am still a middle class women yet very enriched by my blessed experiences with Paul, which I can assure you I will proudly pass along to my daughter. One day, I hope to be able to benefit another young lady or young gentleman by performing a life changing act of kindness, as Paul did with me, so that they may benefit and I can say that the act has now come full circle.

Very Truly Yours,
